THE PURPOSE OF

SOCIALISM

By CARL D. THOMPSON

The clash which followed was, in my humble opinion, ineritable and unavoidable. To my mind, it is absolutely unimportant who started the war. When the steam pressure becomes ton powerful for the strength of the beller, the belier must employe and the explosion will read the weaken part of the belier first. But whe weill believ the weak parties for having

It has acting to lose and all to gain by remaining neutral. Common heree sense and self interest ought to be sufficient to heep the set the second and the second self-second to be sufficient to heep the second self-second s t out of the series.

The Italian Covernment entered into an althone with Germany and Austria, but the Italian people never did and because it was a pervity diplomatic alliance and did not spring from constant need or racial affaity the althone was broken. But if the Italians have no reach to delet for German and Austria. no reason to fight for Gormany and Austria they have still less reason to pull hot chestauta out of the fire for England. It is easy to lead people in the direction where they want to go; quite a different tank to stop a stampede.

I DO NOT BELIEVE that any modern government sould force the people into a war which was opposed by a large majority. A general strike inaugurated by a misority would be very much in the nature of a more flash in the pas. and with a strong majority against war it would be useless. He one caw this clearer than August Bobel who is appealed to in the article of Conrade Herron. At the Manaheim Congress of the Gorman Social Democratic Party in 1906 Behot opposed the general strike resolution in the following words: "Who then believes, that at a moment, when a violent shock, a fever, is stirring up the masses from their very deepest depths, when the perfix of a gigantic war and its appailing misery con-front us — who believes that at such a moment it is possible to institute a general strike? The idea is pustic. From the first day of the out-break of such a war there would march in Germany five million men, with many hundreds of thousands of Socialists included among them. The estire nation would be in the ranks. Frightful want, universal unemployment, starvation, stoppage of factories, fall of paper securi-

BE VIGILANT FOR PEACE

Ramesy MacDonald, formerly chairman of J. Ramony MacDonald, bornerly chairman of the British Labor Party, gives some of his views on the war in a letter to the editor of The In-tercollegiate Socialist. At the outbreak of the war, MacDonald resigned the leadership of the Labor Party on account of his pacifiet principles and has since conducted a vigorous anti-militar-let propaganda in Great Britain. He cays:

So far se Socialists are concerned, they must continue their effects to be the continue to be t continue their efforts to keep the founda-tions of the international intest so that at the earliest possible moment they may begin to rebuild upon these foundations what the war

The one danger which this war has revealed is not that of militarism, because that is secondary, but that of class diplomacy, for upon that all militarism, both Gorman and British,

On this point I differ from some of my Sochilet colleagues who regard wars as being in-evitable under our present industrial order. Of course trade rivalry has much to do with war. The opposition of revolute-bouses steels a way to the national mind.

Trade rivalry becomes actional jealousy and fil-will, but that of Roof would not result in war; it only does so when international relationships are conducted by a political order which emphasizes the judousles of the industrial order and translates them late military especition. That is what the Socialist movements of Europe-will have to strike at when this war is over. If they succeed, this will be the last of our wars; if they fall this will be but the first of a series of conflicts. I am very glad that the American Socialist

I AGRES WITH COMMADE Herres that it was very feetth and mereover, a repudiation of Socialist principles for the German Socialists to fight for the Katser or for the fatherland. What can the German workingclase gain from such a war? And have not the Bolgium Comrades even less to fight for. Their country is invaded it is true. "Their country," the classical home of engitalism, as Marx called it, where labor was even more bitterly exploited than it was in Germany. Their Country, which did not even grant them manheed suffrage after the big general strike of a few short years ago, a strike which was mostly financed by the Tustonic barberiens, who now must be patriotically exterminated.

And have our French brothers forgotten the Commune? Have they forgotten the weeks of harror when the army of Adrigh Theres besieged their beloved capital on the one stide while the army of Biemarck drove the Commune? At this very hour when patriotic British boys are giving their hearts' blood to Great Britain, the capitalists are utilizing the misery of the Belgian rafugues to cut down the wages of their English workers, and the Germans Government is farming out Russian prisoners of war to German manufacturers for twenty cents per day, thereby increasing the misery of their unemplayed still more.

It does not depend upon ideals that may be scattered or upon faith that some begin to doubt.
