There seems to be a difference of opinon among many presumably well-instrained people as to whether we have distinct classes in America. The prevailing elief seems to be that society, as at tresent organized, is one big family, having a common interest and a common im. It is rude, I know, to disabuse heir minds of this cheerful view of the ituation, but facts are stubborn things, specially when backed by figures.

For convenience I have divided society in the United States into three groups you have my permission to call them lasses). The figures given are compiled rom the most reliable information obsimable—principally the census bulletins I 1900. The table forms an interesting tudy and is published primarily to atimilate thought along these lines.

Group one embraces the financiers of he nation—the men who, while not actually owning, absolutely control the reat engines of preduction and distributes in America. At their beck stocks as and fall; prices fluctuate; wages deline; trade shifts mysteriously from the channel to another; and all to the ingle end that profits may flow to coffers already filled to the point of burst-

The House of Vanderbilt was hard hit. The less of the steel traffic necessitated retrenchment in the operating department of the Pennsylvania system, and 7,000 men were discharged without notice. In the steel industry and iron mines the members of group three fared little better. The manipulation by group one of the price of steel, in order to depress the market value of steel stock, resulted in the closing of mines, furnaces and mills, and 25,000 men, with nothing but their labor power to sell, find themselves without a market.

The pitiable part about the whole transaction is that the working class, which composes group three, does not see through the game. I was quite loss of the steel traffic necessitated for a living upon the members of groups one and two. The economic interest of group three is distinct from and opposed to those of the other two groups— inasmuch as the returns in profits which the first two groups must have depend on low wages and high prices. Group three is interested in high wages and low prices.

The Class Struggle.

While groups one and two (so closely allied that they may be considered one, so far as their economic interests are concerned) are struggling to increase profits by increasing prices, decreasing expense of selling by eliminating competition among themselves, the members of group three are striving to raise the standard of wages and shorten the hours of labor.

This is the class struggle of which you may have heard. Many people have absorbed the idea that the Socialists inaugurated and are secretly fostering this struggle of the classes. I can assure you that such is not the case. It is true that the Socialist, in wandering around on a voyage of discovery in the realm of social economics, discovered the existence of the class struggle, and he has been trying to make the millions of men and two men composing group three understand the situation. Once this wistence of the class struggle, and he has been trying to make the millions of men and women composing group three understand the situation. Once this great body of human atoms realizes the situation and asserts its strength the class struggle will cease by the extension of the principle of co-operation partially exemplified by the trusts and mergers so pepular among the members of group one. This principle applied to all branches of industry, would increase the productivity of the nation three-fold and possibly a great deal more. However, Socialism does not propose to stop at co-operative production, but to extend the idea to distribution. In this no better for the division of these co-operatively produced necessities and luxuries has been advanced than to divide them among those actively engaged in the work of making them.

The coroner's jury which investigated the Tercio explosion brought in a verdict placing the blame upon the coal barons, whose greed for profit ignores almost every safeguard to protect human life. Though human lives have been sacrificed, though wives have been sacrificed, though wives have been left widows and children fatherless, and though the responsibility for human slaughter has been placed at the door of the mine operators, yet none of these exploiters, who are murderers through culpable negligence, will become inmates of iron cells, and it is very probable that every effort will be made by the corporate pirates against renumerating, to an appreciable extent, the widows and orphans who mourn the loss of husbands and fathers.—Missers' Magazine.

The Revolution in Industry.

chinery has made in the industrial methods in the United States within the past twenty-five years by a comparison of the machine method now in vogue with the hand method used by our fathers and grandfathers. The following table is taken from the September issue of the Bulletin of the Bureau of Labor, page 1418. In making your comparisons bear in mind that the wage of the men employed in the various industries has not perceptibly increased, while the product of their hands and brains has been multiplied many fold. For instance, take the operation of loading ore. Formerly it required 290 hours of human labor to place 100 tons of ore on a railroad car. Machinery now does the work with two hours of human labor. In other words, human labor has been multiplied one hundred fold. Yet not even the most intense Roosevelt partisan will maintain that wages have advanced more than 25 per cent. Make your own comparisons and ask your republican friend, the next time you meet him, "Who gets the increase!"

BOOK TALK

The Asstemy of Risery, by John Coleman Resworthy; 106 pages, cloth, Ruskin University Press, Glen Ellys, Ill. 81.00.
As some reviewer has stated, "The Anatomy of Misery" is Ruskin reduced to a system; a systematic presentation of the economics taught in the writings of John Ruskin, well thought and well written.

of John Ruskin, well thought and well written.

The following selection from the chapter on labor indicates the author's treatment of the subject:

"In the ancient and classic times of "civilization (and in the case of negroes "until recently), the laborer was a chattel of property, sold and bought. In "feudal times he was a serf, attached to "the land, and he belonged, with the land, "to the owner of it. Our modern so-"ciety recognizes the laborer's right to "own himself. To the propertyless laborers (the vast majority of the nation) the advantage thus gained is that "instead of being sold and bought by others, the laborer new sells himself. " ""The laborer has thus become subject to supply and demand. He is bought in "the cheapest, and his produce is sold in "the dearest, market. As the supply of "him is constantly in excess of the demand for him, his price—wages—is always verging to the subsistence point; "that is, to the minimum that will keep him alive and working, and permit him "to propagate. This condition we call "wagedom, as distinguished frem chattel "slavery and serfdom."

She says: "Woman is beginning to see her true place; she is struggling hard toward the light. The Great Woman Movement of the age is the result of this feeling, but the need is to see intellectually what is thus sensed intuitively." We paid $100,000 for the American rights to Loquozona; the highest price over paid for similar rights on any scientific discovery. We did this after testing the product for two years, through physicians and hospitals, in this country and others. We cured all kinds of germ diseases with it—thou sands of the most difficult cases obtainable. We proved that in germ troubles it always accomplishes what medicine cannot do. Now we ask you to try it—try it at our expense. Test it as we did; see what it does. Then you will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do. You will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do. You will use it always, as we do, and as millions of others do. Kills Inside Germs.

Liquozone is not made by compounding drugs, nor is there any alcohol in it its virtues are derived solely from gas—largely oxygen gas—by a process requiring immense apparatus and ladays time. This process has, for more than 20 years, been the constant subject of acientific and chemical research.

The result is a liquid that does what oxygen does. It is a nerve food and blood food—the most helpful thing in the world to you. Its effects are exhibitanting, vitalizing, purifying. Yet it is a germicide so certain that we can every bottle an offer of parameters.

Germ Diseases.

These are the known germ diseases.

All that medicine can do for these troubles is to help Nature overcome the germs, and such results are indirect and uncertain. Liquozone attacks the germs, wherever they are. And when the germs which cause a cisease are destroyed, the disease must end, and forever. That is inevitable.

shall be deluded into thinking that there is some mutual interest between the capitalist and laborer. It is not the division of society into the clearly defined class struggle, but the lack of such a struggle, that menaces the people. To create such a class struggle should be the supreme task and summons of moral passion. There cannot be, and there ought not to be, any reconciliation between capital and labor. The economic and moral liberty of the people depends upon this clear discernment—that the interests of "labor and capital" are inherently antagonistic, and must never be mutulated or identified with each other. To attempt to build civilization or social peace upon such mutuality is to build upon the fundamental lie of history. The labor of the world before we shall have any social truth to build on.—Geo. D. ### A Prize for Everybody DURING THE MONTH OF DECEMBER

Here's a chance for all, big or little, short or tall, the young and the old, the timid and the bold; none shall be left out in the cold, if he or she knows how to hustle just a little bit. Now that Socialism is the principal topic of conversation on the streets, in the fields, in the shops and the stores, about the only qualification necessary to take subs for the Appeal is to be able to make change and write down the names and addresses plainly. Here is the proposition:

The Appeal will make the following New Year's presents to the workers as a slight recognition of their efforts to carry the message of Socialism to the exploited masses:

Ten elegant souvenir gold watches,

Three fine Webster's Unabridged Dictionaries,

Eighteen contents of Wills' green book "The Street for Versions".

Eighteen copies of Mills' great book, "The Struggle for Existence." A VALUABLE PRESENT FOR EVERY DAY IN THE MONTH.

The distribution will be made as follows:

The ten comrades sending the largest number of yearly subscribers during December, 1904, will each be presented with a souvenir gold watch. Waltham or Eigin movement, gold filled case, full jeweled, guaranteed good time-keeper, and on the inside of the case will be engraved your name, the date and the words, "Presented by Appeal to Reason for Meritorious Work for Socialism."

The next three highest will each receive a fine Webster's Unabridged Distingury.
